

Dear journal,

This pandemic is starting to make me go a little bit crazy. I do school, then watch Netflix and draw for the rest of my day. I go on bike rides a lot so I can be physically active. Every day gets more and more boring. I am so glad I am able to listen to music and do so often because it is interesting and occupies my time. I have finished one and a half sketchbooks over the course of 3 weeks. My drawing has improved significantly. I am glad that the stay at home is supposed to be over soon, but the government has pushed it back multiple times so I can only hope that doesn't happen this time. My dog seems to love quarantine, and why wouldn't she be with us home all day plus she has been getting a lot more exercise now that we aren't always preoccupied with other things. For everyone else though quarantine is not as fun. I have noticed more birds out and about though. A good thing to come out of all of this.
